

"Glitterite"

Crystal Structure : Hexagonal

Color: Dark Pink

Composed Of: Silicon dioxide molecules arranged in a repeating hexagonal lattice structure

Locations: Ouachita Mountains, Arkansas, USA

Current Owner: Blaze Wildfire

Glitterite gemstones are coveted for their dazzling brilliance and are often incorporated into exquisite jewelry pieces. Whether adorning rings, necklaces, or earrings, these gems add a touch of glamour and sophistication to any ensemble.